Dear Chief Justice and Justices of the Mississippi Supreme Court,

My name is John McQuarrie, and I am writing respectfully to ask the Court to grant a rehearing in Carly Gregg's case.

I have recently come to know Carly, and although I am not a lawyer and cannot speak to every legal issue in her case, I have taken the time to learn about what has happened and why her case deserves careful consideration.

I respectfully ask the Court to look again at the issues raised in the Motion for Rehearing and, in particular, to consider the concerns surrounding the Mississippi Department of Corrections' notification regarding Carly's parole eligibility.

I believe the question of what information was provided, when it was provided, and how Carly's parole eligibility was communicated is important and deserves careful judicial consideration. If there are questions about whether the relevant information was properly communicated or considered, I believe those questions should be fully examined before the Court allows the matter to stand without further review.

I also respectfully ask the Court to consider the other issues identified in Carly's Motion for Rehearing. I understand that the Court has a difficult responsibility, but I believe that granting rehearing would allow these concerns to receive the full and fair consideration they deserve.

Carly is a young person whose future is at stake. I have gotten to know her through the privilege of correspondence, I have had the privilege of learning, the Carly Madison Gregg, that shows respectfulness, empathy, kindness, I see a soft spoken Carly, a intelligent, individual, whom in my opinion/ would benefit from a second chance at a future and with the right tools and support to guide her, a society that would gain a wonderful soul that would not only contribute and help make the world better, but show Carly that society, with the right support structure in place would believe in her too. I am learning through correspondence, the Carly Madison Gregg, that Carly, wants to be, these are just some of the things that has struck me about her is her love of drawing and her creativity. I have seen the human being behind the case, and I believe that is important to remember when considering what her future should look like.

I am not asking the Court to disregard the law or the seriousness of the case. I am simply asking that the Court take another careful look at the issues raised in the Motion for Rehearing and give Carly the opportunity for the full and fair review that I believe she deserves.

Thank you for taking the time to read my letter and for considering my request.

Respectfully,

John McQuarrie
